

I do NOT believe that the FCC should implement any proposal that would lessen the State of Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections.

Indiana's Telephone Privacy law has helped my family tremendously. We have an 8 month old baby and the law took effect for us right after she was born. Now, I don't have to worry about calls waking her up, waking me up if I've been up all night, etc. I can nap with my daughter during the day without worrying about the phone ringing for no reason.

Some people might suggest we take our phone off the hook during these times. But we should not have to pay for a phone just to keep it off the hook. It is our money that is paying the bill and I should be able to choose who can call me. Not to mention, that I don't take the phone off the hook in case of an emergency. If someone needs to reach me, they should be able to. Again, another reason WE pay to have a phone. I do NOT pay for phone service so that companies and telemarketers can call me whenever they want. We used to receive calls early on Saturday mornings and as late as 10:30 PM during the week. We used to receive 10 or more calls per week and now we receive maybe 1 a month. It is a blessing.

I think it is ridiculous that a law would be passed allowing these people to call again. If they want to reach me, I have a mailbox. But for the phone service I choose to have and pay for, I should not have to put up with this.
